

Families Disrupted by AIDS

"I'm losing my sight and the memory is also weakening.

I find difficulty in getting food. I can spend a day without eating. All along I have been feeling deserted and worthless to live... however, when I get people like you who want to share with me moments of joy and sorrow, my heart fills with joy and becomes excited.

Thank you for loving us."

Clementine Auma, 82 years old, has lost four of her five children. Her remaining child is in poor health. She is left to raise five grandchildren. Clementine's story is far too common. There are 14 million children in Africa who are orphaned because of AIDS. The elderly are vulnerable for many reasons, which makes the children in their care vulnerable, too.

Grandmothers Beyond Borders

- ♥ Goals:
 - To build solidarity with grandmothers in Uganda
 - To raise awareness of the impact of AIDS on families in Africa
 - To improve the grandmothers' standard of living

- ♥ Objectives:
 - To identify grandmothers and sponsoring angels who are willing to donate funds and/or their time to build this effort

Identify and support grandmothers in Uganda who are struggling in poverty to raise their grandchildren

To build relationships, one community to another, by taking and sharing photographs and stories of those here and in Uganda

Join us as we reach beyond borders

Your donations will be used to provide the grandmothers and their grandchildren with:

Basic necessities, food, bedding, clothing

Scholarships, school supplies and school fees

The joy of knowing they are not forgotten and that their stories matter
